(SECTION TWO)

One. After used eath, followed by statement that Schellenberg was held of Intel and, ofter July 1924, also of Secret Military Intelligence; that he was under Himmler and Autonormore, and he mank of So-Brigadefunher and Maffon-SS Brigadier Concret; that Paefigen was his most important source of information to Latin America, which course he trusted, and that Paefigen's information come from Maybevertranensmann Booker; that other Scuth American intelligence came from Spitzy in Spain, and others, but that Paefigen was shief orchuster the purposaly literal translation of Schollenber; a affidable follows:

Two. On basis of intelligence results, which I often made available to Reich leadership. Augentina was considered at important Standspunk! of German foreign policy; from which German willied to draw every possible accountage. This was made easy through Argentina's own policy, since Argentina in her basic thinking followed a similar line of Germany; the cooperation was not expectably easy after revolution June 8, 1943, whereavy Edulated Language and Juan B. Forth distinct force. Augentina tried to share relations with Germany closur above all, in order, through weapons and products deliveries and through political support, to strengthen her awn potential. The goal of this Argentina policy lay in the strengthening of her political resistance against the North American influence in South America, whereby Argentina attempted to assure for herself the leading role in South America.

Three. As result of the collaboration, the Argentine Govt docided to conclude an expecient with the German secret service; or result of this the German secret service work in Argentine was to be easier and supported, and the German secret service for its part was to support the general expectine policy through making evaluate infermation and channels for transmission of intelligence. The Jerman Secret Service was to be supported in such manner, for example that its agents would no lenger be personated; that it was permitted than to use cover nemes; that the Jermans should be addiced beforehand of coming cabinet changes. The Argentine Diplomatic sourier channels were also to be put at Germans disposal for transmission of secret material. In this connection I recall the name of Thefbhen Arinful Attache in Berlin, commander Educido Ceballos.
